Ms. White : Hi, Kaito. Are you going to practice basketball today?

Kaito : Hi, Ms. White. We've (ア) finished practicing.

Ms. White : I heard the basketball team in this school won the tournament. That's great!

Kaito : Thank you. I think we practiced very hard, so we could win.

Ms. White : It's always good to *make an effort.

Kaito : Ms. White, I heard you like sports. What sports did you play when you were a student?

Ms. White : I ① played ② basketball in ③ a team in my junior high school ④ like you. I also practiced very hard with my *teammates. Why did you start playing basketball?

Kaito : Because my two brothers played it. They enjoyed playing it very much. And they often told me many things about basketball. Well, I'll ask you the same question.

Ms. White : OK. I heard an interesting story about basketball when I was five. イバスケットボールはアメリカの学校のある先生によって作られました。 He found his students couldn't play any sports outside during cold winter. He wanted to make a new sport that the students could play in the gym. Do you know what he first used for *hoops?

Kaito : I don't know. Well..., *buckets?

Ms. White : Good try. But no. When he was looking for boxes to use as hoops, he found two *baskets for collecting *peaches. He decided to use them. I loved peaches the best of all fruits! So, I got interested in basketball after hearing the story.

Kaito : Interesting!

Ms. White : I have (ウ) things to tell you about basketball, but the next class will start in a few minutes. I'll talk to you later, Kaito.

Kaito : OK.

8 次の英文を読んで、あとの設問に答えなさい。

Have you ever read the book “Anne of Green Gables”? It’s a story about a girl. She lived on Prince Edward Island in Canada. The story was first released in English in 1908 and translated into many other languages. It was translated into Japanese, too. A Japanese woman, Muraoka Hanako, was the translator.

Muraoka Hanako was born in Kofu, Yamanashi Prefecture in 1893. Her family was poor. Her father was a Christian and she started going to a Christian school when she was ten. There she (ア) her English skills greatly. During that time, she also studied Japanese classical literature such as waka and learned the richness of expression of Japanese. Later, she became an English teacher and then an editor. She experienced some difficult events such as wars and big earthquakes in her life. Moreover, her child died when he was seven. It was the most serious event for her. At that time she decided to translate English books into Japanese for children.

In 1939, a man from Canada gave Hanako a book: “Anne of Green Gables”. It was written in English. Hanako translated the story into Japanese during the war. There was not enough paper, and she couldn’t use light (ウ) at night. So, it was not easy work to do. But she did it because (エ). She finished the translation by the end of the war. And seven years later, “Anne of Green Gables” in Japanese was released.

Hanako used expressive words to tell Anne’s life on the island and her feelings. Anne was a curious girl. The things that she experienced and her life surrounded by beautiful green farms and beaches were interesting. It attracted many people because they could easily imagine what Anne’s life was like.

Some people say that Prince Edward Island is one of the most beautiful islands in the world. Many Japanese people have visited there. Hanako also hoped to visit there. But her dream never came true. She died without seeing the island with her eyes. But thanks to her translation, when we read the story, we can feel as if we were on the island with Anne.
